About the panelists:

Kelly Froh has self-published many mini-comics and zines including the Ignatz-nominated “Stew Brew” (in collaboration with her partner Max Clotfelter). Her comics and stories have appeared in The Seattle Weekly, The Seattle Review of Books, Popula, Burning House Press, Poetry Northwest, Moss, and The Women’s Review of Books. She is a teaching artist with Seniors Creating Art, a nonprofit that offers free art classes for seniors 55 and up and she runs her own small business providing household help and companionship to older adults. Kelly has performed at the Hugo House's acclaimed Literary Series, Lit Crawl, Pecha Kucha, On the Boards, APRIL, Spark Central, and at Bumbershoot.

Kelly is the Executive Director of Short Run Comix & Arts Festival, which she co-founded in 2011. Short Run will be held on November 5, 2022. See website for details.

The Seattle Art Book Fair is a free annual festival that celebrates independent publishing, book design, and books-as-art. The nonprofit event hosts local, national, and international artists, designers, and publishers and includes talks and workshops. The art book fair is focused on building and expanding the community of booklovers and bookmakers in our region by bringing together seasoned practitioners and newcomers to the field. Founders Tom Eykemans is Design Director at Lucia | Marquand, an art book publisher in Seattle and Jayme Yen is an independent designer and teaches design at the University of Washington.

Brandon Vosika lives in a haunted apartment building in Seattle, WA where he works on acrylic paintings, small sculptures, watercolor drawings, and the pursuit of friendship and ghost stories.

ANEMONE is a collaboration and artist initiative by Amelia Greenhall and Adam Greenhall, based in Seattle. We work on a wide range of things: publishing, sewing pattern production, printmaking (risograph!), consulting, research, software development, design, mapmaking, and other projects in the studio
